

Questions That Matter

By Heidi Bee Roemer

What is a solid?

“I am,” says the wall.
“My size and shape remain the same;
I don’t change at all.”

What is a liquid?

“I am,” says the milk.
“My carton gives me shape.
I’m a puddle when I’m spilt.”

What is a gas?

“I am! Call me Steam-y!
My vapors fill the room,
but you probably can’t see me.”
