	Let's Learn About the 5 Senses, by Nuria Roca Ages 2 – 5. Beginning readers follow the activities of two children who take delights in discovering the world around them. A beautifully illustrated volume tells the story, and suggests activities for preschoolers and early grade children, who learn about the five senses. —Amazon
	A Perfect Mess, by Steve Breen Ages 3 – 5. Henry is one messy rhino, but he tries his best to stay clean for a very important day. He jumps over a mud puddle (and splashes his friend), passes on a gooey jelly donut (just in time for a glob to land on his neighbor) and shakes the ink from his leaky pen (all over his classmates). And while Henry is still neat and tidy at the end of the day, his classmates are anything but. —Amazon
	Too Sticky!: Sensory Issues with Autism, by Jen Malia Ages 4 – 8. Holly loves learning new things in science class, but when she finds out the next experiment is making slime, she's worried. Slime is made with glue, and glue is sticky. Holly has sensory issues because of her autism and doesn't like anything sticky. With help from family and her teacher, Holly receives the accommodations and encouragement she needs to give slime a try. —Amazon
